

Economic crisis - how did it come to this?

From January 26, 2016 to January 26, 2016

Meeting organized with the Departmental Committee for Economic Development in the Hautes-Pyrénées department - Le Parvis Pau

Jacques LE CACHEUX, Professor of Economic Sciences at the CATT/UPPA

Europe is caught up in an economic crisis that is seemingly never-ending. Though its origins lie in the US subprimes crisis, the sequel of events that followed shows that the United States weathered the storm much better than Europe did. So, isn't it about time that we started looking in our establishments and institutions for the reasons why Europe is still in the throes of the economic crisis?
